CONFIDENTIAL

6. [redacted] Delivered to Representative Glenard Lipscomb [redacted] During the course of conversation, Mr. Lipscomb talked about his speech before the American Management Association and provided me with some material regarding the association. He also made available on a confidential basis material provided him by two delegates to the convention regarding a Russian project which they have undertaken. (See Memo for the Record for details.) Mr. Lipscomb expressed concern about this and asked for our opinion on the subject. He also commented that the Chairman of the meeting persisted in "taking him on" regarding his position on East-West Trade. He also mentioned that at one point during the session, an Amtorg representative stood up and characterized his (Lipscomb's) statements as lies and half truths.

Mr. Lipscomb also gave me a copy of an article "How the CIA Makes Friends and Influences Countries" by Ruth Shereff which appeared in the January-February issue of "Viet-Report." He thought this would be of interest to us if we had not seen it. I told Mr. Lipscomb I thought Mr. Carver was familiar with this but that I would bring it to his attention in any event.

7. [redacted] Delivered to Lee Williams, Administrative Assistant to Senator Fulbright, the Director's response to the Senator's letter concerning the [redacted] I was able to speak with Williams only briefly between appointments but he said he would show the Director's letter to the Senator upon his return and be in touch with us should the Senator desire anything before the next CIA Subcommittee meeting.

8. [redacted] Picked up from Frank Schroeder, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, transcripts of the sessions with the [redacted] I also discussed with Schroeder our interest in [redacted] This will be discussed in further detail with Jay Sourwine, of the Subcommittee staff, when he is available.

9. [redacted] Received a call from the office of Congressman William Harsha (R., Ohio) concerning whether a record of a $50 fine would automatically disqualify an individual from employment consideration by this Agency. With the understanding that the specific details are controlling in evaluations such as this, the constituent letter making this inquiry will be sent to us for a reply.
